

Botswana has a good fiber optic cable supplier

AI Overview

Botswana has several reputable fiber optic cable suppliers and network providers, including Paratus Botswana, BoFiNet, and Apex Holdings, offering extensive coverage and high-quality infrastructure. Leading Suppliers and Providers Paratus Botswana operates the Botswana Kalahari Fiber (BKF) route, an 840-kilometer fiber network connecting Gaborone to the Namibian border and linking to the Google Equiano subsea cable. This network provides high-capacity, low-latency connections for homes and businesses, with Fiber to the Home (FTTH) available in Gaborone and wireless alternatives in other regions. Paratus also maintains metro fiber rings, national backbones, and cross-border links, ensuring resilience and redundancy for enterprise-grade connectivity. BoFiNet is Botswana's largest wholesale fiber network provider, offering national and international connectivity. It supports Internet Protocol Transit (IPT) and International Private Lease Circuits (IPLC), enabling high-quality data, voice, and video transmission across the country. Apex Holdings (Pty) Ltd is a local distributor of network cabling and fiber optic products, supplying over 400 stock lines including fiber cables, connectors, data cabinets, and accessories. They cater to installation companies and corporate clients, providing fast delivery and technical support. Market Overview The Botswana fiber optic market is growing rapidly, with projected growth rates of over 12% in 2026. The market includes single-mode and multi-mode fiber, with applications in telecommunications, IT, data centers, and industrial sectors. Glass fiber dominates the material segment, and the market is expanding to meet increasing demand for high-speed internet and digital services. Other Notable Suppliers Additional companies providing fiber optic solutions in Botswana include Broadline Sales, New Technology Group (NTG), Micville Inc (Cyber...
