

How much does a 1km ADSS fiber optic cable cost

AI Overview

The cost of a 1 km ADSS fiber optic cable typically ranges from $250 to $1,200, depending on fiber count, sheath type, and span requirements. Price Estimates Low-end 12-core ADSS cable for short spans (≤ 100 meters) with a standard double PE jacket and basic aramid strength members costs approximately $0.25–$0.35 per meter, which translates to $250–$350 per kilometer. High-end 48-core ADSS cable for long spans (≥ 500 meters) with reinforced structure, high tensile strength aramid yarn, and tracking-resistant outer jacket can cost $0.90–$1.20 per meter, or $900–$1,200 per kilometer. A 24-core ADSS cable for urban use may cost around $180 per kilometer, while a long-span version of the same fiber count can reach $300 per kilometer due to additional strength members and dual sheathing. Factors Affecting Cost Fiber Core Count: More cores increase material usage, cable diameter, and production complexity, raising the price. Sheath Type: Anti-tracking (AT) sheaths for high-voltage lines are more expensive than standard PE sheaths. Span Length and Mechanical Strength: Longer spans require reinforced cables, which can add 20–30% to the cost. Fiber Type and Brand: Premium fibers from brands like Corning® or YOFC® cost more than generic fibers. Environmental Resistance: UV protection, temperature tolerance, and water ingress resistance can increase the price. Regional Differences: Labor, taxes, and material availability can affect pricing in different countries. Additional Considerations Accessories such as suspension clamps, tension clamps, vibration dampers, and joint closures can add 10–25% to the total project cost. Bulk purchasing from a single supplier may reduce per-kilometer costs and ensure compatibility with accessories. In summary, for a 1 km ADSS fiber optic cable, expect a price range of $250 to $1,200, with the final cost depending heavily on fib...
