

How much does an automated laser diode cost

AI Overview

The price of an automated laser diode can range from under $1 for basic consumer-grade units to tens of thousands of dollars for high-power, specialized, or automated systems. Price Range and Factors The cost of a laser diode depends heavily on several parameters:

- Wavelength: Common consumer wavelengths (e.g., red 630–670 nm) are inexpensive, while specialized wavelengths for biomedical or industrial applications (e.g., 375–488 nm) can be much more costly.
- Output Power: Higher power diodes generally cost more, with low-power diodes available for a few dollars and high-power diodes reaching hundreds or thousands of dollars.
- Spectral Properties: Narrow linewidth, single-mode, or tunable diodes command higher prices due to precision requirements.
- Package and Automation: Automated or integrated laser diodes with built-in control electronics, temperature stabilization, or alignment systems are significantly more expensive than bare diodes.
- Quantity: Bulk purchases reduce per-unit cost, while single units are more expensive.

Examples from Distributors

- Mouser Electronics offers a wide range of laser diodes from major manufacturers, with prices varying from a few dollars for standard diodes to several hundred dollars for specialized models.
- eBay and Amazon list consumer and industrial laser diodes, with typical prices for high-power blue diodes (e.g., 445 nm, 5 W) around $100–$200, while more advanced or automated systems can cost much more.
- Specialty UV or narrow-linewidth diodes can reach several thousand dollars depending on specifications.

Summary

For an automated laser diode, expect a starting price in the hundreds of dollars for moderate power and basic automation, while high-end, precision, or high-power automated systems can cost tens of thousands of dollars. The final cost will depend on wavelength, power, spectral requirements, and the lev...
