

Malaysia Fiber Optic Connector Housing Production

AI Overview

Malaysia hosts a growing fiber optic manufacturing sector, with companies producing connector housings, cable assemblies, and related accessories to meet both domestic and international demand. Key Manufacturers and Capabilities

Hextar Group is a leading Malaysian fiber optic manufacturer, established in 1994. Their 7-acre facility produces over 20,000 km of fiber optic cables annually and includes a fully equipped, certified product testing laboratory. They manufacture cable accessories, including connector housings, supporting the growth of fiber optic networks while adhering to ISO 9001:2015 and ISO 14001:2015 standards.

FIBEX (PT Global Venture Sdn. Bhd.) operates an optical fiber termination plant and produces pigtail assemblies suitable for fusion or mechanical splicing. Their products include high-quality connector housings designed for mechanical and environmental protection, ensuring reliable network performance.

Fiber Rex Systems (M) Sdn Bhd designs, develops, and manufactures a full range of fiber optic components, including connectors, adaptors, pigtails, and patch cords. Their solutions cover both tight-buffered and loose-tube cables, providing complete panel-to-panel connectivity solutions for Malaysian and regional markets.

SINOR Technology Sdn. Bhd. focuses on fiber optic installation and splicing services but also works closely with manufacturers to implement connector housings and assemblies for Telekom Malaysia projects. They are certified by local authorities and provide high-quality installation and testing services.

Product Range and Applications

Malaysian manufacturers produce connector housings compatible with standard fiber optic connectors, including SC, LC, ST, and MPO types. These housings are used in:

- Telecommunications networks (FTTH, UNIFI installations)
- Data centers and enterprise networking
- Industrial and commercial fiber optic systems
