

Paraguayan optical cable price

AI Overview

The average import price of optical fiber cables in Paraguay was approximately $5,679 per ton in 2024, with prices varying by country of origin and cable type. Market Overview Paraguay's optical fiber cable market has experienced fluctuations in recent years. The average import price in 2024 was $5,679 per ton, down by 20.4% from the previous year, reflecting a relatively stable trend after peaking at $8,917 per ton in 2017 (IndexBox) . Prices differ depending on the supplier country, with South Korea typically commanding higher prices and China offering lower-cost options . Export prices averaged $1,969 per ton in 2024, showing a decline from previous years . Supplier Options There are 16 verified optical fiber cable suppliers in Paraguay, serving 33 buyers worldwide. These suppliers provide a range of products, including monomode and multimode cables, and offer shipment-level pricing and trade route information for procurement planning . Retail and online platforms also list specific cables, such as SC-UPC single-mode connection cables, which are sold in lengths of 2 meters with a 2 mm diameter, suitable for high-speed data transfer . Product-Specific Pricing For example, interior dielectric cables with 2 monomode fibers (G657), aramid reinforcement, and fire-resistant thermoplastic sheathing are priced per meter, with additional costs for accessories and installation. Maintenance costs over 10 years for such cables are estimated at 879G in local currency, indicating long-term investment considerations . Key Considerations Price variation depends on cable type, fiber count, and country of origin. Import prices are generally higher than export prices due to logistics and tariffs. Supplier selection can impact cost efficiency, reliability, and delivery times. Long-term maintenance should be factored into total project costs. In summary, Paraguayan optical fiber cable prices range widely, with average import prices around $5.679 per ton, while specific retail or project-based cables may vary significantly depending on specifications and sup...
