

Price of hot-dip galvanized cable trays in Cambodia

AI Overview

Hot-dip galvanized cable trays in Cambodia are available from local suppliers, with prices varying based on size, thickness, and customization, typically requiring direct quotes from manufacturers.

Overview Hot-dip galvanized (HDG) cable trays are steel trays coated with zinc to provide corrosion resistance and long-term durability, making them ideal for industrial, commercial, and infrastructure projects in Cambodia. They are widely used for organized cable management, including ladder, perforated, and trunking types, and are designed to withstand harsh environmental conditions.

Factors Affecting Cost

- Material and Coating: The steel grade and zinc coating thickness (typically $\geq 80 \mu\text{m}$ for outdoor use) influence the price.
- Tray Type and Dimensions: Ladder trays, perforated trays, and trunking vary in width (50-1000 mm), depth (25-200 mm), and length (2-6 meters), affecting unit cost.
- Customization: Custom sizes, bends, and accessories increase cost, while standard sizes are generally more economical.
- Quantity: Bulk orders often reduce unit cost by 15-30% due to economies of scale.
- Supplier and Location: Local Cambodian manufacturers like Brilltech and ASEFS provide competitive pricing and may include installation support, while imported trays may incur freight, customs, and import duties.

Price Guidance While exact prices are not publicly listed, local suppliers typically provide quotes based on project specifications. For reference, global market trends suggest that HDG cable trays are cost-competitive in Asia-Pacific, with Vietnam and India offering lower-cost manufacturing options without compromising quality. Cambodian suppliers emphasize high-quality steel, hot-dip galvanization, and compliance with international standards (ISO 1461, ASTM A123, BS EN 10346) to ensure durability.
